

Krieps Construction

This month I asked Ted Krieps to tell me a little about himself and his business Krieps Construction.

Ted was born and raised here in Wesley and wanted to stay around the area with his family. He worked at Snap-On and IMT before he made the decision of starting his own business. Ted has owned this business for 28 years and does the majority of the work himself with a few seasonal employees and one employee that has worked with him for about 10 years off and on.

“Every day is something different, different types of construction and working with the home owners and people, that is why I enjoy it.” Ted enjoys construction because he is always doing something different. He works with all types of construction from shingling/roofing, siding, cement work, doors & windows, drywall, remodeling, and building new to name a few. Ted really enjoys working with people and the home owners. He enjoys getting to know people and helping them achieve the finished project that they wanted.

What are some challenges you face being a business owner? “It can be difficult to find good help that wants to work every day and that wants to do the manual labor in all kinds of weather. The economy can also influence what people can spend on the project and how much work they want to do at the time. The weather can influence how quickly a project can get done if it is an outside project.”

Why do your customers select you? “I take great pride in doing my best on a job. I want the finished product to be something the homeowner loves. I have known many of my customers for years, and many of them are repeat customers. People also recommend me to their neighbors and friends because of the work I have done, which helps in gaining new customers.”

Ted and his family have been involved with the community over the years. They have done a lot of volunteer work for the City and have helped with several fundraising projects! They also work at many of the events put on by the community during the year.

If you had one piece of advice what would it be? “Take pride in what you are building and build it as if it was your own. Always do the best job that you can do.”

“I would like to say Thank-you to all my customers! I appreciate the business everyone has given to me over the years!”
